First Train Trip

For many of the first, second, and third graders of Oakville Elementary School, it was their first train ride — a thrilling trip from Appomattox to Lynchburg, last Thursday, May 23. Kindergarten children from Appomattox also left on the same train in a different coach. Sightseeing

First County EngineerTo Retire July 1

Richmond— Stanley V. Munsey, maintenance engineer for the state's 30,000-mile road system, will retire on July 1 after 42 years of service with the State Highway Department. Munsey was first state resident highway engineer at Appomattox, and served the department here for many years.

W. S. G. Britton, assistant maintenance engineer since 19-51, will succeed Munsey in the top position.

John M. Wray, Jr., former associate engineer in the secondary roads division here and now assistant district engineer for the Salem highway district, will be promoted to assistant maintenance engineer.

He has served in various areas and positions with the road agency since his first job as a rodman on a survey party in 1920, when the newly formed state highway consisted of 4,002 miles of the principal highways in the state.

He was born in Pearisburg, son of the late Charles M. and Rachel S. Munsey, and is married to the former Elizabeth Smith of Cumberland.

and a picnic helped fill out an exiting day for the Oakville youngsters. And for the kindergarten children of Mrs. R. A. Sears it marked their last day together until kindergarten or school in September.

NEW BOOKS FOR SUMMER READING — at your County Library

THE SHOES OF THE FISHERMAN by Morris L. West

"Kiril Lakota was a Ukrainian, and at 56 he was the youngest and most obscure of the 85 Cardinals which met in the Sistine Chapel to elect a new Pope."

Thus Morris West, the author of THE DEVIL'S ADVOCATE, sets the stage for an exciting book of fiction — a very timely one in that so many issues of today are exploited such as Christendom versus Communism.

SILENT SPRING by Rachel Carson

"For as long as man has dwelt on this planet, spring has been the season of rebirth, and the singing of birds. Now in some parts of America Spring is strangely silent — for many of the birds are dead, as are the fish in the rivers, and the earth which supplies our food and inevitably, man himself.'

This book has been a controversial one — and it came as a shock to some people. Read it yourself, then form your own opinion!

BLACK SUMMER, A novel, by Nancy Hale

Seven year old Robert Keen has been sent by his ailing mother and concerned father to spend the summer with his aunt and uncle, the Harnsworth, in Redcliffe New York — a New Englander by a Virginian by birth written an unforgettable about a little boy lations.

r in this field is Dr. ibloom of New York. st and optical re- ho has perfected a ens systems over the ars.

The lenses are doublets, two pieces of glass mounted with a sealed air space between. Others are bioptic or trioptic forms. The bioptic contains a miniature telescopic unit inserted in the upper part of the lens, permitting distant vision when the wearer lowers his head slightly. The trioptic adds a microscopic unit in the lower part for close work. Cost of the spectacles ranges from a low of $20 at clinics to $400 at some private practitioners.

The visual deficit suffered by these patients is caused by the destruction of several million of the six to eight million rods and cones of the retina. On these specialized nerve endings falls the image of everything the eye looks at. When some are missing the image itself is imperfect, as though seen in a scratched and sealy mirror. The seeing-aid lenses aim to enlarge the image, permitting more units to take part in picking it up and transmitting it, over the nerves, to the brain.

Out of Twilight Zone

Many eye specialists maintain that a person who cannot count his fingers at arm's length is not a good candidate for seeing aids. If a large part of the central retina is completely destroyed, if vision is so bad that a person can see only a change of light, he should not expect help from any of these devices. The legally blind, therefore, should beware of false hopes.

An estimated 50,000 persons each year become seeing -aids, and about 15,000 new wearers a year are being rescured from a shadow world.

To Feinbloom and other workers for the sightless, their finest reward is in watching the phenomenon of men, women and children emerging from the twilight zone of blindness into a world they've barely seen.

Teachers Pay Tribute To R. N. Ashworth

R. N. Ashworth, instructor in farm mechanics for both high school students of Appomattox and adults, died suddenly Thursday, May 30. He had missed only a few days' teaching out of the school year, and his untimely passing is deeply mourned by his fellow teachers and students.

Henry B. Pack, head of the Vocational Agriculture Department of Appomattox High School, said Tuesday, "It's hard to express how much this department will miss him. We will not be able to replace Mr. Ashworth easily in that type of instruction. He filled a highly skilled position.'

In addition to teaching Vo-Ag boys, Mr. Ashworth taught adult farm mechanics classes at night. Said Richard Carter, Vo-Ag instructor: 'All the students benefited from his instruction. Nearly every farmer in the county had been helped by Mr. Ashworth.' Pack said he expected that Mr. Ashworth came to the department in August, 1946, having been maintenance man for the State Highway Department in Appomattox and Amherst.

W. C. Dudley, supervisor of vocational agriculture for this and 14 other counties said that under Mr. Ashworth's leadership, a number of Appomattox county boys won district, state, and national farm mechanics awards.

Local Brochure Nearly Complete

Sample copies of a tourists' brochure, with drawings by Ed Hopkinson, of Appomattox, and copy prepared by members of Mrs. Charles Crawley's brochure committe, are almost ready for distribution. Mrs. Crawley has announced that committe members will have the brochure available within the next few days for comment and possible revision. Businessmen, civic organiations, and others are invited to see the proposed publication. Mrs. Crawley and her committee have stated that they hope one or more local groups will undertake to finance the printing and distribution of 50,-000 copies. The RAD Committee has made arrangements for the distribution of 25,000 copies to 1200 strategic touriig areas in Virginia through the Virginia Travel Council. Another 25,000 will remain locally with final arrangements for their effective distribution still to be completed.

More than six million GI loans have been made in the Veterans Administration's GI loan program. They total nearly $5 billion.

Seventh-Day Adventist Church

Sabbath, June 8. Designated 'Kettering Hospital Day' in Columbia Union.

Members of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church of Appomattox will observe 'Kettering Memorial Hospital Day' on Saturday June 8. The $12 million project known as the Charles F. Kettering Memorial Hospital, in honor of the late inventor and General Motors Auto executive.

The hospital first unit of an expansive medical center, is expected to be completed before the end of 1963 according to Pastor William E. Carpenter, who will direct observance of Kettering Hospital Day in the local congregation Saturday. The local church will be joined by all Adventist churches in a seven-state area in noting the plans and needs of the proposed medical center at Kettering, a suburb of Dayton, Ohio.

During th Missionary Service immediately after the weekly Sabbath School program information will be given to the members by aid of tape recordings and posters and information provided to the pastor. The hospital is being constricted by the Kettering interests and then will be given over to the denomination for ownership and operation.

The church is constructing a companion building is $750,000 school of nursing, which is also expected to be completed by the end of the year. The hospital is the first steps in a plan to make the Dayton area a well-known medical center. It is brought into existence as a memorial to the late Charles F. Kettering, on whose estate the center is being constructed.

Eugene W. Kettering, son of the famed inventor and auto executive, said plans for the $12 million center call for the first unit to be a 304 - bed general hospital to be owned and operated by the Columbia Union Conference of the Seventh - Day Adventist Church. Kettering's decision to turn the center over to Adventists is in line with his belief that philanthropic projects should be privately operated and administered. The site of the center is on a 32 - acre tract of land which Mr. Ketterinz has deeded to the hospital corporation. In addition to 304 beds the hospital will have extensive service, diagnostic, and therapeutic facilities. Nearly two and one-half years were spent in designing the building which has one floor below ground and four floors above ground.

The main building contains approximately seven acres of floor space. It has 29 miles of electrical conduit and 28 miles of steam pipe. The patient's room features an originally designed bedside unit which contains, at the patients fingertips a telephone, controls for the electrical and intercom systems in the room, and provision for storage of the guests effects.

The hospital is being financed by the Kettering interests, local and federal contributions, and funds from the hospital corporation. The $750,000 school of nursing building is being financed entirely the Adventist denomination.
